The Original Socionics Test	The Extended Socionics Test	About The Tests
-----------------------------	-----------------------------	-----------------

In General

The Extended Socionics Test is designed to determine your sociotype. It is comprised of 3 sets of questions for a total of 75 questions; answer all the questions honestly. In thinking about your answers, it is helpful to not only consider how you view yourself, but how others view you. It is okay to skip questions you don't understand or are unsure of, but try to answer as many questions as possible.

You excel at discussing your emotions and also excel at interpreting others' emotional state as well as the emotional atmosphere. Additionally, you are adept at improving others' emotional state or the emotional atmosphere of a group.	Q. 1 Which statement fits you best? 	You are attuned to relationships and how people are connected to one another. Not only do you have a clear picture of how a person's actions will impact a relationship, but you also excel at judging a person's action--whether it is right or wrong, loyal or disloyal, just or unjust, etc.
You understand your external environment and can effect change in it as you see fit. You understand the forces and power structure of an environment and can capitalize on this knowledge. You feel connected to your surroundings and realize the world in which you live is malleable.	Q. 2 Which statement fits you best? 	You are immersed in your senses and realize how an object's characteristics impact you, others, and your surrounding environment. Colors, tastes, textures, sounds, temperatures, touch, composition, design, and other characteristics all stand out brightly and clearly to you.
Focus is on smaller groups, where discussions revolve around productivity, achievements, and the future. Overly emotional displays are rare. Complete group involvement in one activity is not required and smaller one-on-one interactions and conversations are encouraged.	Q. 3 Which description fits your ideal style of group social interaction the best? 	Focus is on playful, non-serious games, activities, and discussions. Emotional ebullience is appreciated and encouraged. Discussions rarely focus on productivity but rather focus on multiple ideas and concepts with little thought to their actual implementation.
Someone who is knowledgeable and can help you be more productive and efficient with your activities.	Q. 4 Which type of behavior do you value most in a significant other, but have difficulty producing by yourself? 	Someone who can help you logically break down problems and provides clear and concise explanations of concepts.
Someone who can provide a picture of where things are headed, deep and vivid imagery and imaginations, and artistic impressions.	Q. 5 Which type of behavior do you value most in a significant other, but have difficulty producing by yourself? 	Someone who helps you see the big picture and that provides you with alternate possibilities.
Have fun in a light-hearted atmosphere; enjoy life and don't take it too seriously.	Q. 6 What best describes your life philosophy? 	Focus on achieving goals and one's individuality. Visions become reality with planning and hard work.
I love helping take care of the ones I love. Whether it's providing emotional support or a comfortable atmosphere, my friends and family will always come first in my life. I care about how I look but comfort usually comes first.	Q. 7 Which statement fits you best? 	I put a lot of effort into maintaining my relationships and place a lot of value on them. I help those I care about to achieve their goals through motivation and encouragement. I care about how I look and often enjoy unique styles that help me stand out from the crowd.
I sometimes have trouble making logical connections and often get frustrated when trying to understand theoretical concepts.	Q. 8 What best describes a weakness of yours that you may try and improve but generally avoid dealing with? 	I sometimes have difficulty making efficient use of my time and get frustrated when people repeatedly ask me for information I don't know or point out my lack of knowledge in a specific area.
I sometimes am so focused on the specific task at hand that I fail to identify alternate possibilities and often miss the main point of something.	Q. 9 What best describes a weakness of yours that you may try and improve but generally avoid dealing with? 	I have trouble planning out how long chores and activities will take; I also often worry about the future and am not sure what it will bring.
